Are you aware: That Golden Retrievers need lots of exercise to keep them happy? That they shed copious amounts of hair twice a year and smaller amounts throughout the year? That they require regular brushing to keep the shedding and tangles under control? That they need periodic grooming to prevent matting? That even with regular brushing and grooming you will always have a bit of dog hair on your clothing and furniture? That the breed matures slowly and some Golden Retrievers are forever puppies in attitude? That Golden puppies have a huge amount of energy and unless that energy is discharge they can become destructive? That Golden Retrievers are high-energy dogs and require a great deal of your time and attention daily? That Golden Retrievers are an orally fixated breed and have a real need to carry, therefore they will carry whatever you leave on the floor? That they need the company and companionship of people; and are happiest when they are with people? That even though the breed is noted for being good with children it is not to say that they should be left unsupervised with small children? That even though the breed is noted for being calm, easy-going, people-loving dogs they are still dogs and behave like dogs? That even though the breed is known for being well behaved and intelligent, good behavior from a Golden Retriever requires training on your part and that many Golden Retrievers believe that they are far more intelligent than their owners and can be quite stubborn? Even though every precaution has been taken to prevent health problems, Golden Retrievers are subject to hip dysplasia and joint disease, epilepsy, heart disease, allergies, thyroid problems, cataracts, and retinal atrophy, and cancer? And lastly we breeders are seeing a rise in temperament problems in the breed and once again every precaution has been taken to prevent this but you should be aware that it can occur and that early training and proper socialization is an important factor in any Golden Retriever's life.
